THE HAPPINESS GOD WANTS FOR US

In Jesus' time and place divorce was easily available, only that is, for the man. It was also given a cloak of religious acceptability by Moses' concession to what Jesus refers to as their "hardness of heart". Generally, divorce was bad news for the woman who had virtually no rights under the law. She could face destitution and social rejection and would not have any rights over her children either. In Rome, where Mark's community probably was, the law allowed for women to divorce their husbands too. We see here how Mark is interpreting the teaching of Jesus for a different situation.

Jesus himself gets away from all the legalism and goes back to the ideal that God intended. God made man and woman to be together and to find help and happiness together. God doesn't want the man-woman relationship to break down or be broken. God wants the true happiness of all and certainly cannot be invoked to justify any injustice or ill-treatment of others. This is basically what was happening in Jesus' time – the practice of divorce was saying in effect "God says its OK". Jesus says: "Its not OK! Don't bring God into this to justify your selfishness and cruel treatment of others!

Jesus doesn't talk directly about coping with a marriage breakdown that has actually happened. What Jesus does elsewhere is to call everyone to forgiveness. Wounds and hurts are to be surrounded by the healing grace of forgiveness, patience, prayer and compassion. If possible, reconciliation is to be sought and prayed for. At the very least we are called not to add to the sum of human misery.

If the hurt turns to bitterness and hatred then we have lost our peace of mind and strayed from the way of love. Peace and forgiveness does not condone a wrong situation it makes the process of healing and reconciliation possible.

What of our situation today? God is the same, yesterday, today and forever. God stills wants people to find happiness through a love that is faithful, lasting and forgiving. Couples who want their relationship to work out now realize that they have to take responsibility for it. They are taking time to listen to each other and to share their thoughts, feelings, hopes and fears. They are sharing more equally the responsibilities of home making and child-rearing. They make time for their relationship and try to keep it alive, joyful and spontaneous. They are grateful for the support of family and friends if they are fortunate enough to live nearby. If they find there are problems that are not easily resolved by this means, they are humble and sensible enough to seek help from voluntary or professional agencies. If the couple shares faith in God then they can be more open to God's help. God can renew the gift of love and make forgiveness possible.

We cannot guarantee anything to ourselves or to anyone else. We can only do our best, trust in God, and if there have been failures, trust that God will bring good out of them if we are willing to see it and receive it – which is welcoming the kingdom of God like a child. (DMA).
